

As an organization, you have had to quickly shift and adapt to the changing global circumstances, and are now being asked to plan and organize for the safe return to work for employees. The reopening of offices is fraught with challenges and risks. How do you create a workplace with the appropriate protocols and safety procedures in place to ensure that your employees are safe and feel safe coming back to work?

The Alchemer Return-to-Work Solution arms your organization with repeatable, trackable processes that employees can easily follow when returning to the office. Using these simple tools not only protects your company, but also helps employees feel safer because they know there's a routine in place to formally manage workplace safety.

RETURN-TO-WORK ASSESSMENT

Employees and on-site visitors complete the daily Return-to-Work self-assessment to know when they should stay home. If approved, an email confirmation provides verification for office access at reception. Admins can record temperatures into the assessment before approved employees and visitors enter the office.

DESK RESERVATION

To create healthy and productive work environments, employees can reserve desks for scheduled dates. Available reservations can be restricted to daily limits. Employees receive email confirmations and have the ability to modify or cancel reservations.

VISITOR REQUEST

Visitors, vendors, and contractors may require office access. Employees can submit a request, which includes a workflow with pre-configured approval process and email notifications to maintain a safe workplace. All visitors are also requested to complete the Return-to-Work Assessment.

Daily and cumulative reports enable you to track who is at work on what date, where they're working, and how everybody is doing. Plus, all of your data is safeguarded, as well as GDPR and CCPA compliant.
